“It’s my goal to speak about the Christian life in ways that touch the heart—not just the mind. I want to help your spirit joyfully connect with God’s spirit at the place of desire, so that you want to follow Jesus—not just feel that you should. God’s ways are good—and they should feel good.... Something is always happening between you and God—at least He wants something to be happening.” – Fred Miller

“I love this book! I was challenged and encouraged on every page to deepen my relationship with God and follow Him into a more meaningful walk.... I’ve known Fred Miller for over 30 years and I know he lives this message and he himself is ‘drenched in the life of God.’ If you are looking to experience God’s transforming presence, don’t miss a page.”

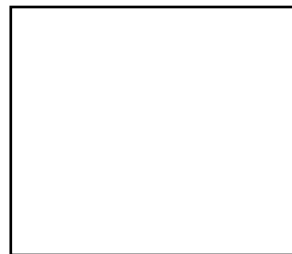

Jim Burns, Ph.D., President, HomeWord

“...[Fred Miller] seeks... to help his readers think about discipleship and do discipleship in all areas of their lives—at home, work, and play.... He speaks of the deep joys of following Jesus, but he is careful not to neglect the obstacles and pitfalls that every serious disciple inevitably encounters. What Miller gives us then, is a highly useable book on discipleship that is at the same time challenging and inspiring....”

Terry Brensinger, Pastor, The Grantham Church,
& Adjunct Professor, Messiah College

Fred Miller is senior pastor of Cumberland Valley Brethren in Christ Church in Dillsburg, PA. His background of electrical engineering, managing a Christian bookstore in Princeton, NJ, working as a part-time office building superintendent, and being married with three children have all helped him see the Christian life in everyday practical terms. His greatest joy is nurturing the hearts and minds of people to love and enjoy Jesus.
